

POEM

ED ROBERSON

the floor
 of turnings,
of shells
 of their decisions,
they say
 is peanuts
compared to the shaving
whorled
 off your pith
as road way
 of arrival at the legs –
 as of a chair –
on which you stand to reach what all this
 has written
off the shelf